Military Historical Tours, Inc. (MHT) announced today that Colonel William (“Bill”) Smith, USMC (Ret.) has joined the travel firm, based in Woodbridge, VA, as its Executive Vice President.

Colonel Warren Wiedhahn, USMC (Ret.), the chairman and chief executive officer of MHT, noted that “Bill has joined our staff at a critical time in the history of our company. As the travel market changes, we must be flexible and develop new and creative travel programs for our interested clients. Bill has a wealth of consulting experience with small businesses, government organizations, and non-profit associations, and will greatly assist us as we look to the future of MHT.”

With experience as the Director, International Programs at a major consulting firm and at the State Department developing interagency plans aimed at reorganizing and re-establishing U.S. diplomatic presence in numerous countries, Bill has the kind of practical knowledge of international affairs that will enable MHT to develop diverse marketing opportunities.

For more than 30 years, Military Historical Tours, the oldest American veteran-owned and operated battlefield tour company, has pursued a vision of providing opportunities to visit battlefields and offer various perspectives of America’s past conflicts. MHT is proud to assist America’s veterans, historians, educators, students, and others interested in walking the ground of history’s greatest battles. MHT places you “where history comes alive.”
